

ABSTRACT

An electronic representation of a business process that is analyzed with an apparatus comprises a rules database 5 including at least one process rule for at least one process step. A process analyser determines whether a process step complies with the at least one process rule of the rules database. An indication is derived of the result based on the determination of whether the business 10 process step complies with the at least one process rule.